+ HUNGARY WILL HOST THE FINAL OF THE BOCUSE D'OR EUROPE FOR THE SECOND TIME MARCH 23 & 24, AS PART OF SIRHA BUDAPEST

2016 will certainly stand as a year to be remembered in the encounter between the Bocuse d'Or and Hungary. The final of the Bocuse d'Or Europe saw the crowning of Hungarian national Tamas Szell after two participations. In achieving the highest step of the podium, the young chef cemented a lasting bond between the contest and his country, supported by a nation, but also by the national community as a whole: chefs, politicians, Food service industry players...

Since 2016, Hungarian gastronomy has never stopped reinventing itself, giving rise to a scene of new young chefs, inspired more and more by their terroir, local products, picking fruits and berries, and all the elegance of the great Tokaj, the inimitable white wines from the region north east of Budapest.

"After the resounding success of the 2016 edition, it is a great honour to welcome, once again in 2022 the most inestimable of gastronomic events", explains Zoltan Hamvas, President of Bocuse d'Or Hungary. "The Bocuse d'Or represents the best tribute to our demanding trade. At a time when the world of cuisine is more than ever keen to cooperate and exchange ideas to reconquer all its might after such a destabilising period, I am convinced that Budapest will once more prove to be an exceptional host to celebrate our wonderful trade and industry."

On March 23 & 24, 2022, no doubt this enthusiasm will translate into support for the 20 teams who will be competing in the major European selecting event, and to determine the successor to Norwegian chef Christian Andre Pettersen (restaurant Studio Cap, Sandnes), winner of the Bocuse d'Or Europe 2020.
